THE LESSON OF THE SEAGULL

- Claude Metier Di Nutzio

"The Lesson of the Seagull" describes the transformation of a family after being taught a lesson by the Seagulls, when the family went for an outing. Claude Metier Di Nutzio has depicted the real-life story of his friend Gerard Moret and his family. The family consists of father, mother and their five teenage children. The father, Gerard Moret, a very busy man and his wife Paule, who always worried about the children. Michel, eldest son of the family at 18, refused to complete his degree since he is weak at maths. Florence, at 17 always spends time with "impossible boys". Herve, at 16 itself addicted to alcohol had come home drunk twice in a week. The last two Charlotte and Chloe were plain lazy just reported by their Principal.

As the family needs transformation, Moret had promised his children for an outing and they went for a boat trip to the cliffs of Puget Plateau, east of Marseilles. After few hours of travel they reached the huge wind - etched walls where they got a chance of meeting thousands of birds and different variety of Seagulls. While they were enjoying the nature in silence they heard a screaming sound of a bird. Some 200 meters away a small brownish bird was attacked by two grey and white herring gulls. Morets immediately rushed to its aid and they tried to retrieve the bird out of water with the help of paddles. But the two adult herring gulls attacked the paddle with their beaks.

Later Morets realized that the two gulls were the parents of the small brown bird and they were trying to protect it and to prevent it from falling. Florence quoted some scraps of ornithology that "When a gull is old enough to fly, its parents surround it at the rock from which the first launching is to be made. A forced landing can mean the fledging will be killed by birds of prey, rats or even by its own kind". Morets rescued the small bird out of water but its parents were wheeling above their boats in spite of attacking Morets. Meanwhile, the little gull struggled like a demon; it is as big as a large duck with ten centimeters long beak which seems to be dangerous. The little gull looked very tired as it fell into the water from height. So Morets took it to the shore to give a first try for the bird. They kept the little bird in a cage and watched it as it grew up. One day Morets took the bird skywards in the wind-mill fashion, but the fledging was not successful.

Developers

- This constitutes the main body of the paragraph and explicate the idea floated by the topic sentence.
- These are responsible for achieving unity and coherence in the paragraph.
- Best ways to achieve coherence is to use transitional words.

Concluding sentence

- The purpose of the concluding sentence is to draw the idea to its logical conclusion.
- This brings the crux of the entire paragraph.
